

Jobs in health care available now!

Students enter the bachelor's degree programs below after two years of prerequisite course work. Following two years of study at KU Medical Center, graduates find their skills are in very high demand, both locally and nationally, with exceptional job-placement rates.

Clinical Laboratory Scientists use sophisticated instruments to analyze blood and other body tissues to provide the essential information needed for diagnosis and treatment.

Health Information Managers analyze, manage, and secure patient information in a field combining science, business, law, and information systems.

Respiratory Therapists evaluate and treat patients with breathing disorders in environments such as intensive care units, clinical practice, and rehabilitation centers.

Contact an advisor and apply today!

Interested? Call the KU Undergraduate Advising Center at 785-864-2834 (711 TTY) or visit healthprofessions.ku.edu